CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Gillespie is Dead and Wade is Held For Murder.

George Wade, the mulatto cook on the steamer Australia, was charged with murder in the first degree in the District Court this morning for maliciously and intentionally killing William Gillespie, the head waiter on the steamer.

Gillespie died at the Queen Hospital yesterday afternoon. A coroner's inquest was held at which it was proved that the deceased came to his death through wounds inflicted by revolver bullets. No verdict has been rendered yet. The following gentlemen composed the coroner's jury: H. Kruger, J. Andrade, J. H. Schrack, Geo. Martin, A. Peyser, and J. Brown.

The jurors viewed the body which was buried at Nuanuu cemetery at 11 o'clock this morning.

When Wade appeared in Court he looked very weak evidently from the shot he received in his head from the rifle of officer Evans, and he was accommodated with a chair while Deputy-Marshal Hitchcock, on behalf of the Government, read the charge which may consign the man to the hangman's noose.

Wade started speaking by saying that he was sorry, when he was interrupted by Mr. Hitchcock who warned him that anything he might say would be used against him, and advised him to keep his mouth shut. Wade fell back in his chair and feebly muttered, "that is the best, yes, that is the best."

The case was then postponed until the 8th of June when the Australia is supposed will be here with the witnesses to the shooting, and Wade was removed to his cell by chief detective Kaapa.

The alleged murderer is middle aged and is rather stout. He is well known here and has always been considered a good fellow. No bail will be allowed and he will remain in Oahu Jail until the day when he must answer for the murder of his friend.

A Grocery Trust.

T. Waterhouse & Co. A number of shares in the new concern is held by leading sugar factors and prominent capitalists. It is expected that the new building will be completed before the 1st of January, 1900. The three firms are the oldest in their line here and are held in the very highest esteem in business circles. The crockery department of J. T. Waterhouse & Co. will be discontinued and the stock has been sold to the Pacific Hardware Co.

A Narrow Escape.

Joao Aralla, a Portuguese drayman, was injured this morning while assisting in moving a heavy job press into the Nott building on King street for the Mercantile Printing Co. The rope gave way and the press went down, striking the man, who received several scalp wounds and bruises. The surgeon of the Leelanaw happened to be around and rendered immediate assistance to the man who was later on attended to by Dr. Day and taken home. The press was partly wrecked and the new establishment may have to postpone its opening.
